The first performance of Gershwin's orchestral Tune From "An American in Paris" took place at Carnegie Hall November 12, 1919 by the Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York under the baton of Walter Damrosch. The musical program committee prepared for occasion by the Society. It is noteworthy that in its selection of this work it had not only a program of orchestral music but also a program of vocal music. The vocal part of the program was the vocal solo of the soprano, Miss Glynis Cooper, who sang the vocal solo of the program. The vocal solo of the program was the vocal solo of the soprano, Miss Glynis Cooper, who sang the vocal solo of the program.
